

Leadership

Colin Earl, CEO

Agiloft CEO and founder Colin Earl is a software industry veteran with over 25 years of experience as a developer, product manager, and CIO. Colin worked at IBM, General Electric, and three start-ups before founding Agiloft in 1991. His vision was to accelerate the building and deployment of enterprise business applications by removing the need for custom coding. Under his leadership, Agiloft has achieved this goal, creating a market segment for agile business software. Colin's focus is on growing a world class team and aligning the interests of staff, partners and customers. He has an engineering degree from Imperial College, "Britain's MIT", and moved to Silicon Valley in 1986.

Patricia Pritts, VP of Sales

With over 20 years of experience managing and supporting software products and custom solutions, Patricia leads the Sales team at Agiloft. Her broad experience includes senior managerial positions in software development, technical support, project management, and release management. Patricia's previous employment includes the U.S. Census Bureau, Claritas, Inc., Etak, Inc. (acquired by Sony Corp) and Tele Atlas. She has a B.S. in Mathematics with extensive course work in Computer Science from the University of Maryland.

Bridget Conrad, VP of Customer Services

Bridget has over 20 years of experience in Silicon Valley high tech firms, including working with enterprise customers to guide their process automation design, designing program enhancements, and managing and developing implementation staff. At Agiloft she manages the professional services and documentation teams, training programs, and support for partners and resellers. She graduated Summa Cum Laude from Yale and has a PhD from City University of New York.

Brandon Wright, Director of Partner Relations

Brandon brings over fifteen years of experience to his role as Director of Partner Relations at Agiloft. His experience includes C-level positions in the technology, education and non-profit sectors where he was responsible for forming and expanding strategic partnerships that established nationally recognized educational technology products and services. He has a double major in Economics and Latin American Studies from the University of California at Santa Cruz.
